

---

Charles E. F. Millard is a Senior Advisor at Amundi US. He advises the institutional team and clients on topics related to pension strategy, pension fund regulation, and the growing interest in Responsible Investing.

Charles is a frequent speaker, writer, and advisor on pension-related issues. He has appeared numerous times on CNBC and been published in The Wall Street Journal, Bloomberg, Financial Times and elsewhere on a variety of pension topics. In addition to working with the institutional team and clients, he works with the marketing team to strategize on speaking opportunities and editorial content.

Charles was appointed by President George W. Bush to be the Director of the United States Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. He was the first Director to be confirmed by the United States Senate and carried the rank of Under Secretary.

Subsequently, he was Managing Director and Head of Pension Relations with Citigroup. He also taught pensions and public policy at the Yale School of Management, served as a Senior Advisor for McKinsey, and held various senior roles in the private sector. Earlier in his career, Charles served as the President and Chief Executive Officer of the New York City Economic Development Corporation, and as a member of the New York City Council representing the Upper East Side of Manhattan.

Charles is a member of the Editorial Board of the Journal of Retirement and the Advisory Board of the Georgetown University Center for Retirement Research. He holds a B.A. from the College of the Holy Cross and a J.D. from Columbia Law School.